When asked if he knew the police of the Second precinct had formulated the opinion that Mrs. Columbus was also the perpetrator of the first robbery. Major Sylvester admitted that he had not investigated the first robbery and did not know the facts.

He also said that he did not know whether the police had looked up the clew concerning the man who called at the Columbus home and which Columbus alleges he made known to the Second precinct officials.

A full report on the case was being prepared by the detective bureau, Major Sylvester said, and, until then, he would make no statement for publication.

It is the members who have refused to commit themselves in any manner who hold the fate of Senator Lodge in their hands, and prominent Republicans who have talked to them have reached the conclusion that while some of the sixty-four will eventually vote for Lodge, enough of them will join the anti-Lodge forces to make his election

The assertion was made today by intimate friends of Senator Lodge that his only hope for success is to challenge Eugene N. Foss, governor-elect of Massachusetts, to a joint debate in every sachusetts, to a joint debate in every city in the State. Mr. Foss is expected to take the stump in a day or two, and it is believed here that he will do irreparable damage to the Lodge ambitions unless the Senator himself goes into every city and town where Foss speaks and meets his arguments.

Senator Crane, who is engineering the Lodge campaign, is understood to be opposed to a joint debate, and insists that the campaign be conducted quietly, and by using personal influence with each member of the Legislature.

The Second precinct police were open. The Second precinct police were promptly notified, and, at the same time. Were told about a negro who had mysteriously called at the house a few days before and inquired if a Mr. Mason took his breakfast there. This is the clue that Mr. Columbus referred to.

The police, it is charged, said they would investigate the case and would inform the family that evening if they had made any progress.

But, according to Columbus, the police were not heard from again until last saturday morning, following the second robbery. The cantain of the Second precinct and a detective arrived ston after they had been informed of the attack and theft.

At this time, it is alleged, they were asked if they had investigated the clue clue concerning the man who called at the house, but informed the family they had not attempted to find out anything about the negro.
